DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Naves et al (5,395,313).

Claim 1 - element -110- is an elongate curved hollow tubular member, element -127- is a conical tip, element -130- is a contoured capture aperture element -140- is a capture piston, elements -250- and -120- are considered portions of the handle unit which is adapted to receive a fluid in open communication with the hollow elongate member, and element -200- moves the capture piston. The capture aperture is disposed at the distal end of the member and therefore considered "disposed to receive the end of a sling.

Claim 2 - the capture piston is hollow at least through conduit -230-.

Claim 3 - the examiner is considering bores -220- or -230- as chamfers.

Claims 4 and 5 - elements -205- are fluid ports.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 6/4/2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The applicant argues that Naves et al does not teach a capture aperture being disposed to receive an end of the sling tape. It is the examiner's position that as set forth above the capture aperture is disposed to receive the end of a sling. It is clear that the end of a sling is capable of being passed through and received in the capture aperture -130-. The distal end of capture piston -140- in figure 2b when retracted will allow the sling in and when moved distally will hold the sling in place.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 6-13 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 14-20 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art does not teach or fairly suggest the locking piston/spring arrangement as set forth in claims 7,8 the specifically shaped aperture of claims 9-11, the cap of claim 12 or the method as claimed in claim 14 including the step of inserting said conical tip through one of the vaginal incisions and threading the conical tip between the bladder and symphysis while introducing saline solution through the hollow tubular member.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
